

Command Design patterns work by transforming requests into objects and then passing that data as method arguments. The command Design pattern would be coded in the following way:

if 2 ducks have been missed the public abstract class Command would be executed in relation to the controls, override functions would be necessary to feed in the new commands